

Engaging HeArts & Minds

Energising the creative potential and performance of teams

Leaders strive to develop teams that deliver 'best in class' performance through influential relationships and agreed ways of working that generate outstanding results.

How can team leaders:

- Engage team members more deeply?
- Enhance performance more creatively?

This workshop is for you if you want to:

- Build awareness of individual contributions to the team
- Create a shared team vision and performance culture
- Galvanise creative team capabilities
- Experience something new in developing others

Engaging HeArts & Minds is a one-day workshop that uses painting as an analogy for developing effective teams. Come prepared to:

- Paint with your fellow participants
- Learn something new about your way of working
- Explore the parallel themes of art creation and delivering results with others
- Shift your thinking on how to energise potential, engage people and enhance performance

Working with artist in residence, Helen Laishley, and team effectiveness facilitator Yvette Elcock, you will:

- Apply key elements of composition to review team effectiveness
- Learn about how great art uses visual language to inspire, connect and communicate a leadership vision
- Consider how to facilitate effective ways of working and resolve tension and conflict to maximise results
- Contribute to a unique collective experience and outcome

Who is it for?

- Learning & Development facilitators with a responsibility for, or an interest in, different perspectives on team effectiveness.
- Enlightened leaders who want a different take on how to enhance the effectiveness of their team(s).

Helen and Yvette have designed the day to enable some practical painting and application of artistic techniques with fellow participants as well as the opportunity to reflect on applying the concepts back at work.

Space is limited to 12 to ensure everyone gets some individual attention as well as the opportunity to work with a mix of people and develop a sense of the learning team community.

Your investment for the day is £525 plus VAT, (refreshments and lunch included).
